International Conference - Introduction

Background:

Indian agriculture is typically identified with the 'Green Revolution' happened during 1960s which enabled the Nation to make great strides in domestic food production and significant contribution to agriculture and allied sectors. It transformed India from a food-deficit nation to a food-surplus and export-oriented country. However, now the country is facing second-generation problems, especially related to sustainability, nutrition, and the adoption of new agricultural technologies and perhaps most importantly, income levels of the population dependent on farming. Presently agriculture is facing new unprecedented challenges. The governments at the central and state levels are continuously taking efforts in addressing the challenges, and relevant departments are being involved in closely in monitoring the situation. Various advisory committees, task forces formed are submit their reports & recommendations in bringing appropriate changes in administration, existing programmes and policies to meet the challenges. The country is known for its diversity of farming practices which necessitates the collection of ideas at national-level dialogue to find suitable solutions and for future strategies.

India being agrarian country agriculture not only makes the country secure in terms of food, fodder, and raw-materials for industries, it along with the allied sectors also serves as the source of livelihood for the large proportion of rural population of the country. Agriculture and allied sectors provide direct & indirect employment opportunities to large population in the rural areas. The share of agriculture in total employment was nearly 69 per cent of the workforce in 1950-51. It steadily came down to 59 percent in 1990-91. The latest Periodic Labour Force Survey (PLFS) report shows a sharp increase in employment in agriculture from 42.5% of the total employment in 2018-19 to 45.6% in 2019-20.

In the above context, the proposed conference AGRI-INNOVA 2023 help to bring all stakeholders namely agriculturists, budding agriprenuers, industrialists, business incubators, researchers, scientists from various institutions and Farmer Producer Organizations on a single platform to present and share their recent innovations, technologies, experience, expertise, business models and success stories of Agri Start-ups. This conference is expected to offer a unique opportunity for sharing of knowledge about potential technologies, recent innovations and agripreneurial ecosystems for formulation of viable Agri start-ups, technology commercialization, export guidelines and social entrepreneurship for sustainable agriculture businesses.
